The Complainant discovered in January 2021 that the Respondent had registered the disputed domain name on January 16, 2020 and that it was being used to set up an online social community for providing the Complainant’s television programmes to the public, without the Complainant’s authorization.

On January 18, 2021, the Complainant issued cease and desist letters to the Respondent, the disputed domain name website’s Internet service provider (Alibaba Cloud) and the domain name registrar (NameSilo, LLC), to demand the removal or disabling of access to the Complainant’s copyrighted works and the termination of services provided to the Respondent. The Complainant did not receive any response.

4. Parties’ Contentions

A. Complainant

The Complainant’s contentions may be summarized as follows:

i. The disputed domain name is confusingly similar to the Complainant’s TVB mark as it incorporates the letters “TVB” in its entirety. The Complainant and its TVB trade marks are well known throughout the world, the TVB trade mark having been used continuously for more than 50 years.

ii. The disputed domain name is also confusingly similar with the TVB variation marks.

iii. The Respondent has no rights or legitimate interests in respect of the disputed domain name as the Complainant has not licensed nor authorized the Respondent’s use and registration of any domain name consisting of the TVB mark. The Respondent is not connected, associated or affiliated with the Complainant. The Respondent, by offering to Internet users the ability to view the Complainant’s programmes, without the Complainant’s authorization, has infringed the Complainant’s copyright and other intellectual property rights. Such use is not legitimate or fair use of the disputed domain name.

iv. The Respondent registered and is using the disputed domain name in bad faith. The disputed domain name was registered in 2020, whereas the Complainant had been widely publicizing the TVB mark since 1967. The Respondent seeks to mislead the public into believing that the Respondent’s website is associated with the Complainant and/or the Complainant’s official website. The Respondent chose the disputed domain name with full knowledge of the Complainant’s business and TVB trade marks. The Respondent is using the disputed domain name for use in relation to its website in direct competition with the Complainant. The Respondent has sought to lure away the Complainant’s customers who, instead of purchasing video products or subscribing to or visiting the Complainant’s various authorized online platforms, end up visiting the Respondent’s website to access the Complainant’s programmes for free. The Respondent’s use of its website has therefore adversely affected the Complainant’s business and income. The Respondent is riding on the reputation of the Complainant and is using the disputed domain name to attract Internet users to its website for commercial benefits.

B. Respondent

The Respondent did not file a Response to the Complaint.

5. Findings

The ICANN Uniform Domain Name Dispute Resolution Policy provides, at Paragraph 4(a), that each of three findings must be made in order for a Complainant to prevail:

i. Respondent’s domain name is identical or confusingly similar to a trade mark or service mark in which Complainant has rights; and

ii. Respondent has no rights or legitimate interests in respect of the domain name; and

iii. Respondent’s domain name has been registered and is being used in bad faith.

A) Identical / Confusingly Similar

Paragraph 4(a)(i) of the Policy requires the complainant to show that the disputed domain name is identical or confusingly similar to a trade mark or service mark in which the complainant has rights.

In the present case, the Complainant has provided evidence of their numerous trademark registrations for the TVB marks and TVB variation marks. The Complainant, additionally, has been using the TVB marks extensively and for a long time, and has thereby acquired rights at common law therein.

It is well established by numerous UDRP Panel decisions that the inclusion of a generic or descriptive term does not serve to differentiate a domain name in dispute from a complainant’s mark. In the present case, the disputed domain name incorporates the Complainant’s TVB mark and is identifiable therein. The addition of the letters “ME” at the beginning and the letter “S” at the end of the disputed domain name does not serve to remove the confusing similarity with the Complainant’s TVB mark, bearing in mind the numerous TVB variation marks which have been in use. Members of the public looking at the disputed domain name may be easily be confused into thinking that the disputed domain name would bring Internet users to one of the websites of the Complainant. The inclusion of the generic Top-Level domain, “.com”, does not serve to distinguish the disputed domain name from the Complainant’s TVB mark as it is a technical requirement for domain name registrations.

Consequently, the Panel finds that the Complainants has shown that the disputed domain name is confusingly similar to a trade mark in which the Complainant has rights.

The first element of paragraph 4(a) the Policy has been satisfied.

B) Rights and Legitimate Interests

Once a complainant establishes a prima facie case that the respondent lacks rights or legitimate interests in the disputed domain name, the burden of production shifts to the respondent to show that it has rights or legitimate interests in respect of the disputed domain name. (See WIPO Overview of WIPO Panel Views on Selected UDRP Questions, Third Edition (“WIPO Overview 3.0”), section 2.1.)

In the present case, the Complainant has demonstrated a prima facie case that the Respondent lacks rights or legitimate interests in respect of the disputed domain name. The Complainant has provided evidence that it commenced use of, and owned numerous trademark registrations, for the mark TVB before the disputed domain name was registered. The Complainant has also established that it has not licensed or otherwise permitted the Respondent to use the Complainant’s TVB trade mark and variations thereof.

The Respondent has not submitted a Response to the Complaint nor has it provided any explanation or evidence to show it has rights or legitimate interests in the disputed domain name. The Respondent has therefore failed to rebut the Complainant’s prima facie case.

Accordingly, the Panel finds that the Respondent has no rights or legitimate interests in respect of the disputed domain name.

The second element of paragraph 4(a) the Policy has been satisfied.

C) Bad Faith

A complainant must also show that the respondent registered and is using the disputed domain name in bad faith (see Policy, paragraph 4(a)(iii)). Paragraph 4(b) of the Policy provides examples of circumstances that may evidence bad faith under paragraph 4(a)(iii) of the Policy.
The Complainant has submitted evidence which shows that the Respondent registered the disputed domain name long after the Complainant had used and secured registrations of its TVB trade marks. According to the evidence filed by the Complainant, the Complainant has owned registrations for the TVB trade marks since as early as the year 1992.

The fact that the Respondent’s website features the Complainant’s TVB marks and offers competing services shows that the Respondent was well aware of the Complainant and its TVB trade marks, as well as its reputation in the television programmes and broadcasting industry. The Panel is strongly persuaded by the evidence submitted that the Respondent had specifically targeted the Complainant with a view to mislead and confuse unsuspecting Internet users, or to entice them to its website for commercial gain. The Panel therefore finds the circumstances described in paragraph 4(b)(iv) of the Policy to have been established in this case. The Panel also draws a negative inference from the Respondent’s failure to respond to the proceedings.

The Panel therefore concludes that the disputed domain name was registered and is being used in bad faith.

The third element of paragraph 4(a) the Policy has been satisfied.

6. Decision

For the foregoing reasons, in accordance with paragraphs 4(i) of the Policy and 15 of the Rules, the Panel orders that the disputed domain name <METVBS.COM> be transferred to the Complainant.
